

Diabetic Eye Disease

Diabetes affects every part of the eye, not just the retina. Presenting critical information about seven different kinds of diabetic eye disease as well as important steps all diabetics must take to preserve vision, Dr. Chous clearly and comprehensively guides you through the fundamentals of good diabetes management and great eye care. Written by an eye doctor, diabetes educator and patient advocate, this book is dedicated to helping you or someone you love avoid blindness and other complications by taking charge of your diabetes.

Read our article and learn more on MedlinePlus: Diabetes and eye disease. On This Page: Diabetes and diabetic retinopathy DR symptoms Types of diabetic eye disease Who gets diabetic retinopathy? Minorities and diabetic eye Help raise awareness about diabetic eye disease, which causes vision loss and blindness, w/resources from the Diabetic Eye Disease Education Program. Learn more from WebMD about the different eye problems that can arise with diabetes, including diabetic retinopathy, glaucoma, and cataracts. Diabetic eye disease has no warning signs. Finding and treating the disease early, before it causes vision loss or blindness, is the best way to control diabetic For more information about diabetic retinopathy or diabetes, you may wish to contact: Diabetic retinopathy is the most common form of eye problem affecting people with diabetes, but further diabetes-related eye problems are common - such as Diabetes can cause eye problems such as Diabetic Retinopathy, which damages blood vessels in your retina. Know what symptoms to look out for. Diabetes can affect your eyes in a number of ways. The most serious eye condition related to diabetes is diabetic retinopathy. Early diagnosis is vital. These conditions include diabetic retinopathy, diabetic macular edema (DME), cataract, and glaucoma. All forms of diabetic eye disease have the potential to cause severe vision loss and blindness. Diabetic retinopathy is the most common cause of vision loss among people with People with diabetes can have an eye disease called diabetic retinopathy. This is when high blood sugar levels cause damage to blood Diabetic retinopathy is the most common diabetic eye disease and a leading cause of blindness in American adults. It is caused by changes in the blood vessels Diabetic eye disease is a group of eye conditions that affects people with diabetes: Diabetic retinopathy A leading cause of blindness in Diabetic eye disease refers to a group of eye problems that people with diabetes may face as a complication of this disease. All can cause severe vision loss or Diabetic eye disease is a group of eye problems that can affect people with diabetes. These conditions include diabetic retinopathy, diabetic macular edema,