

Hindu Philosophy: The Bhagavad Gita or the Sacred Lay, a Sanskrit Philosophical Poem (Classic Reprint)

The Bhagavad Gita is a poem, written in the usual verseform of the Hindu epic poems, and is an episode in the sixth book, or Bhisma Parvan, of the Mahabharata, an epic poem devoted mainly to the deeds of the rival princes, who, though descended from a common ancestor, Kuru, fought as Kuravakas and Pandavas for the kingdom of which Hastinapura was the capital. The facts which preceded the opening scene of the poem are briefly these: Dhritarashtra and Pandu, the sons of Vyasa, were brought up, after the death of their father, by their uncle Bhishma, who carried on, in their minority, the government of Hastinapura. Dhritarashtra was the first-born, but being blind, he renounced the kingdom in favour of Pandu. The former married Gandhari, daughter of Subala, king of Gandhara, and had one hundred sons, of whom Duryodhana was the eldest. Pandu married Kunti, also called Pritha, the daughter of Yadava prince, Siira, who gave her in charge to his childless cousin, Kuntibhoja. She bore three sons, Yudhishtira, Bhima, and Arjuna; the eldest (Yudhishtira), being born before Duryodhana, was installed by Dhritarashtra as Yuvaraja, or heir-apparent. Other traditions represent that a treaty was subsequently made, given a territory of which Indraprastha, on the river Yamuna, was the capital.
