

She smokes like a fish: New howlers, typos and other mistakes

This is a compendium of mostly original material gathered over a lifetime of snapping up unconsidered trifles, including typos, headlines, odd business names, book titles, spellchecking blunders, howlers, and much more besides. The centrepiece is a chapter Mr Malaprop - a man of his word - the secretly collected mis-speakings of a former colleague, one of which forms the book's title. She smokes like a fish places all these blunders into categories, explores the various kinds of error, warns of the perils of the computerised spellchecker and generally takes a delight in our ability to think one thing and say or write another.
