

Kamakwie: Finding Peace, Love, and Injustice in Sierra Leone

Ann Connor Brimer Award for Children's Literature finalist, 2013 The Children's Literature Roundtables of Canada's Information Book Award finalist, 2012 2013 Ann Connor Brimer Award for Children's Literature nominee Sierra Leone is the poorest country in Africa. Yet it is populated by people who are hopeful, and aspire to better themselves through education, proper health care, and through putting behind them the horrors of civil war. Kathleen Martin spent several weeks in the tiny village of Kamakwie in the interior of the West African country. Here she spoke to the people - and the children -- about their lives, their aspirations, their memories of war. The experience was a revelation, which she has so wonderfully chronicled in this moving and inspiring portrait of a people willing to forgive so they can look to the future with regained hope and dignity.

I went to a presentation at Dalhousie University two days ago, where Kathleen Martin read from and talked about her new non-fiction book, Kamakwie: Finding Peace, Love, and Injustice in Sierra Leone. African country of Sierra Leone, Halifax author Kathleen Martin discovered stories of love, hope, and justice in Sierra Leone.
