

Scientific Evolution, Creation Theologies, and African Cosmogonies in Dialogue

This is a dissertation in which the question of cosmic origins is examined from three perspectives: Scientific Theories of Evolution, Christian Theologies of Creation, and African Cosmogonies, respectively. Through the use of comparative-dialogic and dialectic methods, and the application of the models of contact/dialogue and confirmation/integration in ways of relating science with religion, the insights of these three perspectives are examined and analyzed in the formulation of a Theology of Evolution that conceives of evolution as a medium of divine creativity... God creates through the process of Evolution.
